By Judy Lowe

eyes of the world and the State Department are on Salt Lake City as it receives the foreign delegates of the world to its 75th Anniversary Conference on Records through Friday.

Delegates will come from Asia, Europe, Africa, and Central America, Russia, Mexico, the Philippines, and the South Pacific and from some of the new nations.

Several months ago, the conference committee sent a letter of invitation to the Soviet Union, through the Russian Legation, Genadi Alexandrovich. They were extremely disappointed to receive his abrupt refusal that he had too many prior commitments and could not put the conference on Records in his schedule.

Just as the committee resigned itself to accept this negative reply, they were informed by the State Department that it is not proper to invite only one Russian dignitary to visit this country. So the committee promptly sent a second letter of invitation to the assistant national archivist in Russia, suggesting that they would like both to attend if they could adjust their schedules. It was not long before the committee received a letter of acceptance from both Russians.

Other prominent participants will be Lord Thomson of Fleet, London Press Lord; Duc de la Force, of Paris, France; Baron Karl Friedrich von Frank, noted Austrian genealogist; Dr. James B. Rhoads, National Archivist of the United States; Hsiang-Lin Lo, University of Hong Kong, and Dr. Labib Habachi, an Egyptologist from Cairo.

With over 40 countries represented, the theme for the four-day conference and convention will be "Record Protection in an Uncertain World."

The conference, sponsored by the Genealogical Society of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, will serve two purposes. First, it will be a means of determining what records are available in the various countries,

Sterling W. Sill To Speak In Devotional Assembly

By Jim Hunt
Managing Editor

One of the most familiar voices in the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints is today's Devotional speaker, Elder Sterling W. Sill, assistant to the Council of Twelve, will talk at 10 a.m. in the de Jong Concert Hall of the Harris Fine Arts Center.

Elder Sill speaks each week morning at 8:30 a.m. on local radio station KOVO.

One unusual honor the Church leader has received is having a building at the University of Utah named after him. It is the Sterling W. Sill Home Living Center.

A native of Layton, Utah, he attended Utah State University as well as the U of U. The latter school has awarded him an honorary LL.D.

Professionally, Elder Sill is the Inspector of Agencies for insurance companies in a seven-state area. He has held the position since 1940.

He entered the insurance business in 1927, and was manager of Salt Lake City office of the New York Life Insurance Co. before receiving his appointment to the inspector's post.

Elder Sill has also served the Church as High Councilman in the Bonneville and North Davis Stakes and as Bishop of the Garden Park Ward, among other positions including a Southern States mission.

Social Office Sets Weekend Plans

Tickets are on sale for Wild, Wild West Weekend events, according to Bowen Miles, chairman of the activities.

Sales are taking place in the Wild West ticket booth located in the West Patio area of the Wilkinson Center.

Miles has announced one change in plans. There will be only one dance, a western dance entitled "Custer's Last Stamp." The cost is still $5.00.

Preceding Saturday's dance will be a swim party and Hootenanny Hopdown.

The John Hartford Concert and Chuckwagon Beef Barbeque will be Friday. The concert, 8:30 p.m. in the old BYU Stadium, costs $1.50 and the dinner $1.25 (50 cents under 12 years old).

A package deal is available combining the cost of the three events, $3.25 individually, into a $3 charge.

The beef dinner will feature beef, of course, corn, salad, rolls, apple turnovers and drinks.

An assembly Thursday will kick off the weekend. At 3 p.m., a watermelon bust will happen in front of the West Patio of the Wilkinson Center.

Reed Halladay stresses that tickets for the dinner must be purchased by 5 p.m. Thursday. This includes combination tickets.

For the Wild West Weekend activities, girls may wear levis on campus starting at 3 p.m. But they are not permitted to wear them to any classes.

Singer To Spend Week Teaching At BYU

Thirty years of experience as a celebrated figure in opera and concert in Paris and United States will be brought to the BYU classroom next week by Jennie Tournel.

The famous diva will give master classes during the week and a concert performance Aug. 13 at 8:15 p.m. in the Concert Hall of the Harris Fine Arts Center.

Miss Tournel is appearing in several universities under the auspices of the Carnegie Hall Corporation in a special series of master classes that have been especially created for her and devoted to the repertoire with which she has been associated during her distinguished career.

Of Russian parentage, educated in France, Miss Tournel made her debut in Paris as Carmen at the Opera Comique. Particularly associated with this role as well as Mignon, Miss Tournel has sung each well over 300 times. She sings in ten languages and speaks five.

She left Paris just two days before the Nazis entered the city in World War II.

Last year she was awarded a medal by the French Government as Chevalier in the Order of Arts and Letters for her meritorious contributions to French music.

ELDER STERLING W. SILL, Assistant to the Council of Twelve, shakes hands with a cord during one of his visits to BYU. In addition to his frequent addresses at the Y, he is heard each week on radio KOVO.

Teddy's Return

The Kennedys aren't only politicians because of the family name. Just how true this statement is is emphasized in Senator Ted Kennedy's return to the political scene after his tragic auto accident.

Right now, Kennedy fans are lamenting the fact that Teddy has said very clearly he will not seek the Democratic nomination in 1972. Rather, he has said he will run again for his senate seat in 1970 and serve the full term.

Republicans have threatened to give him the race of his life if he chooses to run again. This threat doesn't carry too much punch when you try and imagine Massachusetts turning on a Kennedy.

Actually, all this should seemingly play right into Teddy's hands: First—if Kennedy was re-election against "Super Republican," his stock as a hard campaigner will soar (a qualification considered ideal for all Democrats); second—Nixon will probably run for term number two in 1972 and barring continuation of the Vietnam conflict, he will probably be re-elected; third—Teddy's withdrawal has left Sen. Edmund Muskie the Democratic nomination and consequently here to the defeat in 1972 (see point two). This leaves Kennedy as the obvious choice in 1976. In 1976, the Presidency should be up for grabs, the Kennedy name should be calling card enough for that office; Muskie's defeat in '72 would put him out of the race.

That is unless of course Senator Kennedy has another mysterious accident.

Daily Importance

It looks bad for pedestrians at Utah Lake State Park. Rangers have been instructed to assess everyone who enters the boundaries of the park the one-dollar fee. Whether you are afoot or horseback, if you enter the park any other way than the front gate with money in hand, you are to be treated like a criminal.

This course of action may not be new, but it is being enforced religiously for the first time. A first offense is worth 10 to 15 dollars. Second and all offenses thereafter must really be punitive for the park official we conferred with disdained even mentioning what could happen to a chronic offender.

This harangue brings up the old question: Is Utah Lake State Park worth a dollar improvement for the privilege to enjoy all the "many improvements"? Or perhaps more correctly, is it worth a dollar to be admitted to the area's largest mosquito nest?

Summer Stock

This summer is the most active summer for activities that BYU has ever seen. And most of it is due to the selfish and unifying efforts of our summer student government officers.

These people have worked tirelessly to bring off the big extravaganza and the weekend dances that have kept us from going to sleep this summer. With nearly ten thousand students here this term, the task has been much greater than in the past.

With the coming of the Wild, Wild Western Weekend, we will participate in the apex of their labors. This weekend will feature dances, hootenannies, movies, a watermelon bust, a swimming party and a big Friday night concert starring John Hartford.

This is the kind of hard work and planning we've always asked of our government officials before. Now that we have it, it's time they got back the kind response from the students that they need.

Let's support Western Weekend.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

Letters . . .

On A Witch Hunt

Dear Editor:

I agree with you that witch-hunting is bad. People who engage in it are forgetting one important truth: man has free agency. "Let's burn all the witches," they cry, "before their terrible teachings corrupt our loved ones." Christ never burned witches. He cast out the evil spirit and converted those "witches" willing to listen; the others He left alone—knowing they had the power to corrupt "only" those who chose to be corrupted. But witch-hunters forget this. So they feel they must forcibly free their society of witches, assuaging their murder-beset conscience by rallying the sensationalistic support of the community.

Now, Mr. Garrett, I fail to see where the Sunday speaker or the "MIA" orator fit the description above. I was at both meetings and heard the comments of both. I remember their expressing grief at the desire of certain people to promote drug-use through popular music, but nowhere did I hear them urge anyone to any kind of punitive action against these promoters. In fact, I distinctly remember both saying how necessary it is to provide popular music that conveys a better message. That sounds more like Christ's method than the witch-hunters'.

Thus, maybe I have misunderstood your insinuation that these two speakers are witch-hunters. Maybe "witch-hunting" means merely expressing sentiments in such a way as to stir up people's feelings. If that is true, then you had better watch out, Mr. Garrett, because you were witch-hunted.

Projection—Lost Art

By Susan Tanner

Skidding around corners, and over the edge of the cliff, when suddenly a large face appeared on the picture, and the sequence followed, four, the two, then the usual "xx" and then the over again.

When the malfunctioning in the projection room finished, the viewers had not only missed the plot, but the mood of the entire film was ruined.

To the avid theater goer, Provo, this is a normal occurrence during a movie. Why just the other day my friend was saying "Can you believe it? The picture went out six times during 'Fantom'."

"I guess I was lucky," exclaimed my roomie, "I only went three times, while I was there."

As I chuckled to myself, thought of how the projection in one of the well-known downtown theaters had let the picture go out six times during the movie, I watched the film shiver up and come close to dying right there on the screen.

Now it wouldn't have been all that bad, but it is right in the middle of the only half decent second "M" movie. The entire story was based on a tiny three minute strip of film.

BLAME

Of course, we could place the blame on the film makers for such a stupid trick as placing the end of the film in a short three minute cut, but why not place it on the person to whom it belongs—incompetent projectionist.

In a small town in northern Arizona, it was town joke that the movie would go out at least twice during the evening. Now this total darkness effect was convenient for the daters, and quite amusing because of the high-school-classroom movie types of films.

Garrett

PROVO

But in a large metropolitan area such as "beautiful downtown Provo," there is no excuse. And on the BYU campus, where elementary education must pass a projectionist test, it is questionable whether an excuse could also be offered for any of the campus theaters.

Of course, one can't always say that the film goes out, sometimes the first half of the movie is shown out of focus—I must add here that it is not that new prescription in glasses is needed in my case, it just had mine changed.

SPlicing

Or if it's not the focusing or the fade-outs—fade-ins, it's the splicing job. It is a well known fact that many of the Provo theaters cut films unmercifully (to the chagrin of many viewers) It wouldn't be so bad if the splicing was half decent but as the French say, "C'est La Vie."

It is rumored that the entire chase scene was from one of the drive in theater's showings "Bullet." That same film was so hacked apart that it was lucky if the viewer had any idea about the plot (which was hard to follow without cutting).

Have the Provo theaters set themselves up as a movie censorship board, or is it just a case of pined help?

FORGIVE

A wise man, once stated, "To err is human, to forgive, divine."

Let us hope that the entire town of Provo and students of BYU are forgiving individuals in the heart of the entire projectionist's guild: is perpetrating.

Records Conference Begins

where they can be found and how they can be used.

Elder Theodore M. Burton, vice-president and general manager of the Society, explained, "We need more information, and one way to get it is to go into foreign countries to talk with people. But how much better it will be to have them come here, stimulating one another and allowing our people to know them and them to know us."

However, the Church does not have the time nor the funds to go into all the countries and microfilm and store their records. Thus, it is hoped that the conference will also stimulate the record-keepers of the world to make a united effort to preserve the multitudes of records.

"We're trying to be a catalyst," noted David H. Pratt, a conference committee member and BYU instructor in genealogical research.

In addition to the general assemblies which will be held each day, the conference will include 210 separate classes and seminars. Here national archivists, renowned genealogists and microfilm and communications experts will present papers on a wide range of topics.

A small sampling includes: "Arabian Genealogies," "Japanese Americans: 'Origins, Past and Present,'" "The Gathering of Jewish Records to Israel," "Quaker Migrations in the USA," "Understanding a Welshman's Background," "The Navajo Records as Prototypes," "Long Distance Records Transmission by Electronics," and "Tips on Reading the Handwriting in Early U.S. Records."

Although conference participants will be able to attend only 25 classes, papers presented by speakers will be printed and available to all. There also will be countless exhibits from companies which manufacture computers, microfilm processing equipment and other records-related apparatus.

Plans for the World Conference on Records appeared on the drawing board in late 1967. From the start, the committee included several members from BYU. The genealogical research faculty likes to think that the conference was originally inspired by the Priesthood Genealogical Research Seminars in Provo.

BYU committee members include V. Ben Bloxham, David H. Pratt and Norman E. Wright, genealogical research department; DeLamar Jensen, chairman of the history department; Russell Horiuchi, geography professor who will conduct the Japanese section of the conference; Bent K. Anderson and Madeline Teglassy of the BYU library; and Gary Carlson, director of the Computer Center.

Leadership Clinic

A down to earth look at high school student leadership problems will be the theme of the week-long "Lead Off With Youth" leadership workshop for high school students.

Beginning Aug. 11 on the BYU campus, the workshop will involve lectures, discussions, practice, action training, role relationships, specific problem analysis sessions and discussion groups.

Application will be stressed in this first annual summer workshop. Participants will be given hypothetical problems and through the small discussion groups, they will work them out.

Val D. MacMurray, a BYU graduate student in psychology, is director of the program. A special advisory group of BYU faculty consists of Dr. William G. Dyer (sociology), Dr. Kenneth R. Hardy (psychology) and Dr. J. Weldon Moffitt (psychology).

Specific problems such as how to get along in the complex society of high school, how to open communication systems between students and faculty, how to get a feeling for individual interaction and how can one get people to work and follow through will be considered.

BYU Hosts Sounds of Summer Workshop Now in Progress

The students attending the "Sounds of Summer" music clinic now in progress on the BYU campus are being assisted by outstanding musical artists.

Vaclav Nelhybel, a composer-conductor of international renown, was born in Czechoslovakia. He was educated at the Prague Conservatory of Music, University of Prague and the University of Fribourg, Switzerland. Since 1957 lived in New York and became an American citizen.

His works have been performed by the orchestras of the world in the Vienna Symphony, Orde in Suisse Romande, Hilversum in Holland, Cincinnati Symphony and Minneapolis Symphony.

Mountain Cats Hope for Improved Season

By Bob Hudson
Universe Sports Editor

first wave of BYU's troops, the Cougar football team, will hit Provo on Sept. 31 to begin drills for the upcoming season. Coach Tommie Moe recently what he felt were prospects for a good season. He said by saying that there too many intangibles to be able to predict how the team would go.

However, we have good honest players who will give us a work. They've met the demands of the sport well and we will be happier with them. We should have a much-improved team looking forward to."

Key to a good season will be the injuries incurred last spring have healed. John Brown, Sam Hanna, Wes Clark, Paul Satorius and all others could play significant roles in this coming football drama.

new faces we will see are those of Mel Olson, a senior letterman who recently transferred from the mission for the University of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. Mel, a center, will start at right guard next spring and adds a great strength to that position.

h Soccer Meets Wed.

By Jim Hunt
Managing Editor

ment of the Utah Soccer Association, including BYU, will be held in a league meeting today, league president Bill Johnson announced recently.

representatives of BYU, Utah State, Utah A&M, Utah State and Jim Hunt expect to attend the meeting.

primary topic of discussion will be the utmost importance of the Y, is the projected decline of the league into a minor league.

the past, the league has been in two divisions, an A and B. Now there are more than 20 teams and some teams consider the current setup unwieldy.

the divisions will be proposed at the meeting.

setup, proponents say, will be more even competition and necessitating the use of referees.

is expected to back the vision idea. The Y intends to have three teams this year, and adoption of the proposal will simplify placing them in a league.

Others who will probably see a great deal of action include tight end Dan Bowers, linebacker Jeff Lyman, offensive tackle Ray Crandall and middle guards Carl Bowers and Steve Facer.

The all-important quarterback slot will be filled by returnees Rick Jones, Marc Lyons and Don Griffin. Griffin, a sensation at the spot his freshman year, returns to the post after spending a year with the defensive secondary.

According to Coach Hudspeth, the kicking game will again be strong.

Richard Adams returns for his senior year as the punter. He has been said to have one of the quickest releases in the game. He averaged close to 41 yards a kick last season.

Sophomore Joe Lihensquist and JC transfer Scott Lounsbury will do the place-kicking for the Mountain Cats. Both have good credentials and could give the Huddspethers a long-distance scoring threat.

Coach Tommie's choice for WAC champion is the University of Wyoming with Arizona State and the University of Arizona close behind. He states that the toughest teams we will probably face will be these conference foes.

The season opener is scheduled September 20 in Cougar Stadium against the Colorado State Rams. It will be, of course, the conference opener for both clubs.

How Namath Made 'Bama

That Joe Namath, star professional football quarterback, almost played for the University of Maryland instead of Alabama is a rather well-known fact.

What is less well-known is how he wound up at Alabama.

According to a recent story in Sport Magazine, Coach Bear Bryant of the Crimson Tide can thank then-coach Tom Nugent of the Terrapins.

In August preceding his freshman year, Namath was informed his entrance exam grades were below Maryland's requirements for admission.

A retent was hurriedly organized and Namath fled again—by three points.

Coach Nugent, thinking quickly, contacted Alabama, which is not on Maryland's schedule.

"Heaven forbid," Coach Nugent said, "He should wind up at Penn State or Syracuse, which we play every year."

Former Cougars Shine In Weekend Action

Ex-Cougar Richard Zinniger, now with the Salt Lake City Bees, continued his winning ways as he fired a seven inning no-hitter against Pioneer League rival, Great Falls.

The former Cat ace ran his pro record to 8 wins against 1 loss with the 3-1 gem. He struck out 13 batters and walked but 2 in the masterpiece. The lone run for the Great Falls club came in the sixth when he hit a batter who moved around the bases on an error, a passed ball and a sacrifice flyball.

Winning has come quite easy to the stocky left-hander this season. He has won 19 games (11 of them in the collegiate ranks) while losing only 3.

FOOTBALL

Craig Bozich, a former Cat footballer has some national exposure as he started at middle linebacker for Otto Graham's All-Star Collegiates against the New York Jets.

Fans in the area were disappointed when he did not play much after the first quarter. Up until that time he had played well, although he was not outstanding.

The Jets won the game by the score of 26-24. What had been a dull game in the first half suddenly changed after Utah State's Allie Taylor set up the first All-Star scoring opportunity in the third quarter.

Helps Develop Stewardess Look...

Former Coed Joins Airline's 4,000

By Charlotte Antriel
Universe Feature Editor

Nadine Wilcox is a former BYU coed who proves that being a returned lady missionary is not all that anglo-morous.

Nadine is a stewardess with Pan American Airways who played a key role at Pan Am's San Francisco base in developing the airline's new look for stewardesses.

A trained cosmetician, she spent three years at BYU as well as completing a two-year mission to Chile between 1965 and 1967.

When Nadine returned to campus and her home in Provo last week she modeled the new uniform designed for Pan American by Evan-Piccone of Manhattan.

She likes the dress which she finds "much more stylish" than her old uniform. Now, too, she can decide to wear either gold or blue, as the airline has added another color after 42 years without departure from blue.

Another feature is a pleated A-line skirt chosen for the freedom of movement it allows.

"It's designed conservatively," Nadine said. "The uniform had to satisfy not only stylishness and the needs of the girls but also would not be offensive and would certainly be acceptable in the countries to which we fly." Paul Hermans, senior public relations representative for Pan American in the West, added.

For example, standards of modesty in Moslem countries where women must not be either bare-armed or show their throats, are different from western dress standards.

On being a stewardess, Nadine commented, "I think the schedule that we keep is somewhat challenging... The work is demanding but very enjoyable."

"An appreciative passenger is about the best compensation that you can have for any amount of effort," she added.

Before she could fly, the former coed had to spend six weeks in training which concentrated on meal preparation and service, grooming, passenger service in the air, and emergency and life raft procedures.

Having flown 500,000 miles, she has an opinion about service. "I think the key is anticipating people's needs, and I think where you can do this they feel very much at home and very comfortable," she commented.

One of her most difficult trips is with 175 soldiers from Vietnam on their rest and recreation flights to Formosa, Australia, the Philippines and Hong Kong.

"I think they are our most appreciative passengers," Nadine said of the troops. "It's more fun bringing them than too, of course, then taking over."
